DEVELOPMENT ASSOCIATION.

Thirty-eight prominent men of Washington and of Alexandria county interested in the development of the country, held a preliminary meeting in the Metropolitan Hotel in Washington yesterday afternoon for the purpose of organizing an Alexandria county board of development. The movement was fostered by W. S. McKean, who was prominently connected with the national peace jubilee held last May, under the auspices of the Washington Business Men's Association, and the meeting was called to order by him.

Among those in attendance were Frank Hume, Alexander J. Wedderburn, James E. Clements, M. B. Harlow, A. W. Armstrong and S. H. Lunt.

After the temporary organization was perfected the draft of the constitution and by-laws was read. The board of governors will have charge of general affairs, will appoint all standing committees, meet monthly and report to the central association at every meeting of the latter. The membership fee in the board is to be $5, and $3 will be assessed as dues annually. The board is to meet on the third Monday of every month. The annual meeting is to be held on the third Monday in November of each year, and new officers will be chosen at that time.

On motion of M. B. Harlow, it was decided to refer the constitution to a committee who will report at a meeting of the association on Friday afternoon, of this week.

Mr. McKean, as originator of the movement, explained the project of the association during which he referred to the proposed Memorial Bridge and Mount Vernon Avenue.

The proposition met with general favor, and a number of speeches were made favoring the plan of the promoters.

Mr. Clements referred to the meeting as the charter gathering of what might become a great enterprise for the county, Alexandria and Washington. He alluded to the possibilities of the county, the need for new bridges, a remodeled Aqueduct Bridge, the Memorial Bridge, and the possibility of a railroad entering Washington from the Virginia side of the river in the vicinity of the Three Sisters. He thought the board should keep the government up to its full duty toward Alexandria county.

Maj. Lacy, who, with Mr. Hume, has been endeavoring for ten years to secure a direct entrance from Alexandria county into Washington, referred to the manner in which the Senate had frequently blocked Alexandria county legislation. "I put this interrogatory," said he, "to one of the Senators who was blocking the path of legislation: 'Why do you permit railroads to enter the national capital over government streets and refuse to urge the erection of adequate bridges across the Potomac river?' He replied that he did not want to start to be paternal to the State of Virginia. Now, this is my hobby. It is the axe I want to grind. I want to make it possible for Alexandria county people to get into this city direct."

Mr. Harlow referred to an effort to secure permission for an electric railway to cross the Aqueduct bridge, and told how a certain bill of that character passed the Senate and was opposed in the House by a powerful lobby. The proposition had even been made, he explained, to have the railroad company accept plans drawn up and approved by the Secretary of War for a bridge that would cost not less than $600,000. The company agreed to build the bridge and make it free, but the House refused to permit the arrangement. He thought that the great drawback of the county is a lack of bridges.

Mr. R. A. Phillips vehemently abused the Washington newspapers. He stated that it delighted the press to publish reports of crimes in Alexandria county. "In fact," said Mr. Phillips, "one of the Washington papers printed a falsehood some time ago to the effect that it was unsafe to pass through certain portions of Alexandria county."

Mr. M. B. Harlow defended the press in a stirring speech. "They could have done no better possibly for Alexandria than they did at the centennial celebration," said the speaker. "It has been my experience," continued Mr. Harlow, "and I know many here will agree with me, that all three of the Washington papers are willing to deal fairly with us. When a crime is committed in Virginia, it should be published, as is done in the District of Columbia, but I cannot voice the sentiments of Mr. Phillips, and say that the press of the District of Columbia delights in publishing falsehoods about us."

Mr. A. J. Wedderburn also made remarks upholding the newspapers. "For many years," he said, "I wish to thank the press for the able articles on the centennial at Alexandria city several weeks ago. It appears to me some what irregular to attack the newspapers at a meeting of this kind," he continued, "and the time will come when the association we are now organizing will be ready to grasp the assistance of our Washington newspaper friends."

Mr. Augustus Davis Jr., replied to an interrogatory by Maj. Lacy as to why it
